

Erin Whitmore (MSW, RSW, PhD) is a registered social worker with over a decade of experience in community organizing, gender justice activism, and social policy. Currently, Erin is the Executive Director of the Ending Violence Association of Canada, a national, non-profit organization that works toward the eradication of gender-based violence. Previously, Erin held the role of Senior Researcher for the National Inquiry into Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls, as well as numerous other research and policy analysis roles in community-based and government settings. Erin's approach to research and social change is grounded in over five years experience in frontline service provision counselling survivors of sexual violence. Erin holds a Masters in Canadian and Indigenous Studies (Trent University), a Masters in Social Work (Dalhousie University), and a PhD in English Literature (University of New Brunswick).